“Faced with such powerful deeds perpetrated by the enemies of God’s Church, are we allowed to stand about idle? Is it permissible merely to complain and shed tears? No! Consider that at the last judgment we will not only give an account of what we have done, but God will also count up all those good deeds that we could have done but failed to do. Incumbent upon each one of us is the serious duty to stand on the front lines and physically fend off the enemy’s attacks.”

- St. Maximilian Kolbe

“A liturgy that is well done, a Mass that is well celebrated with all of the bows, all of the reverences - all that has a meaning. The Church is not trying to give us some kind of a pleasant theatrical performance. The incensing of the priest and the faithful, the bows, the genuflections, every one of those gestures has a profound significance. But some say, “why do we incense the people?” We incense God, we do not incense men. In reality, we are incensing souls sanctified by grace, because they are the temple of the Holy Ghost. And if we incense authorities with more solemnity, it is because men who hold authority are participating in God’s authority.

-Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre
